iOrale! Gente,

It takes near super-human strength to get through these oppressive/regressive times. The idea for this character came not long after the November 1994 elections and the passage in California of proposition 187 against immigrants. Racism is alive and well in California and is becoming overt in the politics of this country. Too many took 187 as a license to discriminate.

More and more people of color are becoming victims of the exploding prison-industrial complex and the corporate culture --- creeping into every area of life is leaving us with even less opportunities for free expression. So! This book is no corporate sell- out! I intend to use my right to free speech to the fullest.

This little book is dedicated to those of you who have experienced and survived racism and discrimination. (No, I'm not talking about White boys whining about women and minorities "taking over.") If you've ever been denied a job, a promotion or a fair trial because of the color of your skin or if you've ever been pissed on because you're poor, you know what I'm talking about.
